User Manual

Our app helps producers, corporations and organizations interested in creating films to get relevant information that will help them make decisions in film production. From the stage of selecting the genre, the theme of the plot, determining the ideal length for the film, and ending with the selection of the most suitable director and actors. We help customers produce a film that will maximize their profits and receive positive reviews.

Build your next movie

Q Search your insights here.

Plot Guru	Statistics	Crew Builder
Discover films made on your desired subject.	Everything you need to know to make this movie the best profitable one.	Adjust roles to get the most out of your team.
Try search: • "average revenue of war movies"	Try search: • "best length for a comedy movie" • "Wiki pages of the most profitable director"	Try search: • "top actor in each genre" • "best actors for each director" • "actors that played in many profitable movies" • "how many films mad by X got positive reviews"

The app supports a free natural text engine that converts the text to a query for our Database. Also, the application has several modules where our clients can build their movie and team and get on the fly suggestions for whom or what to add for their movie, in order to get good critiques or to maximize their revenue from the film.

Plot Guru Module

This module helps you choose which scripts to turn into movies. For example, if you look at a particular topic such as war, you can see what the average income of war movies is and see if the choice of script will be worthwhile. You will also be able to see for each film how a particular plot affected the film's revenue and the reviews it received. You can enter the name of the screenwriter and check what the audience reactions were to the films he wrote and much more.

Statistics Module

This module helps you gain insights by asking questions that interest you and also by customizing recommendations for the details you have entered into the system for the film you are working on. This way you can adjust the length of the movie you are working on according to its genre, or even get references to information for relevant movies on Wikipedia. For example, suppose you want to understand the secret to the most lucrative director's success ever - our system will find out who this director is and return his films with references for further reading, so you can research and see what that director's films have in common.

Crew Builder Module

This module helps you build the team that will make the film. You can get information about professionals such as who is the actor who has played the most movies in a particular genre, which actors and directors have collaborated several times before, how many films of a particular director received a score above 8 on IMDB, which actors played in the most popular movies and more. The information you will generate in this module will help you select the most suitable people to work with together for the success of the film.

Search Bar

If you want to search for any information, regardless of the specific movie you are working on, you can try writing a question in the search bar, and we will search our databases for the answer to your question.